The Washington Times

EDGAR D. SHAW, Publisher.

is second class matter at the Postoffice at Washington, D. C. Published Every Evening (Including Sundays) by The Washington Times Company, Munsey Bldg., Pennsylvania Ave. Mail Subscriptions: 1 year (Inc. Sundays), $7.50; 3 Months, $1.95; 1 Month, 65c

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1919.

Advice to Union Workers

And Some Other Things.

Advice to union labor, based on the discourse of one who likes unions about as much as cowboys like rattlesnakes:

"Keep contracts, avoid strikes, don't split up into factions, with good workmen fighting each other. High wages are here, they are going to stay, and high wages are extremely DANGER-OUS to labor organizations."

An able citizen, who has accumulated a few scores of millions and for whom thousands of men have worked, said yesterday: "I am not worrying any more about union labor and its power.

"The next fight will be between Gompers, Lewis, etc., and the ordinary nonunion workingman, with whom strikes interfere. The man who can get five to ten dollars a day, steady work, doesn't want to stop work because somebody mys so. You can put it down that the closed shop will soon be a thing of the past."

Unless union workers and their leaders are wise, the above prediction will come to pass.

Unions are strong when wages are low, work scarce, and the pressure of necessity compels men to stick by each other and work together.

These are the days of high wages, work for everybody; and the average worker, not thinking much about others, does not want to be bothered with strikes that interrupt his carnings.

This applies especially, it must be remembered, to those recently arrived in America. When they get five or ten dollars a day they do not need all of it to live. They can live on $1 or $1.25 in spite of the high cost of living.

The apparent collapse of the steel strike indicates that crowds of workmen getting for unskilled labor the pay formerly given to the skilful men have their mind on the pay envelopes, not on winning a strike or on establishing a principle.

The captain of a ship is careful in a storm. The storm of prosperity, not the storm of poverty, is most dangerous to the ship of organized labor, and wise leaders will realize it, keep their forces together, keep their men earning.

Labor troubles have their good side. Little boys were used on the "breakers" in coal mines, picking pieces of sharp slate out of the coal, often with bleeding fingers. That went on as long as little boys were cheaper and more convenient than machinery. When the law began to interfere with child labor, machines began to come in.

Just at present the miners are selling you the slate with

The latest demonstration of labor trouble as promoter of progress comes in the great telephone system of the

The automatic telephone has been known for years. It could perfectly well have been developed, used everywhere, saving loss of time and irritation. But labor was cheap; why bother? Girls used to be put to work at three dollars a week in the beginning. Now they are put to work at $12, and they don't stay.

So the telephone company is going to use the automatic machine because it HAS to. The only thing that pushes men forward is trouble. Labor trouble develops machinery, as tire trouble developed the wonderfully good tires of today.

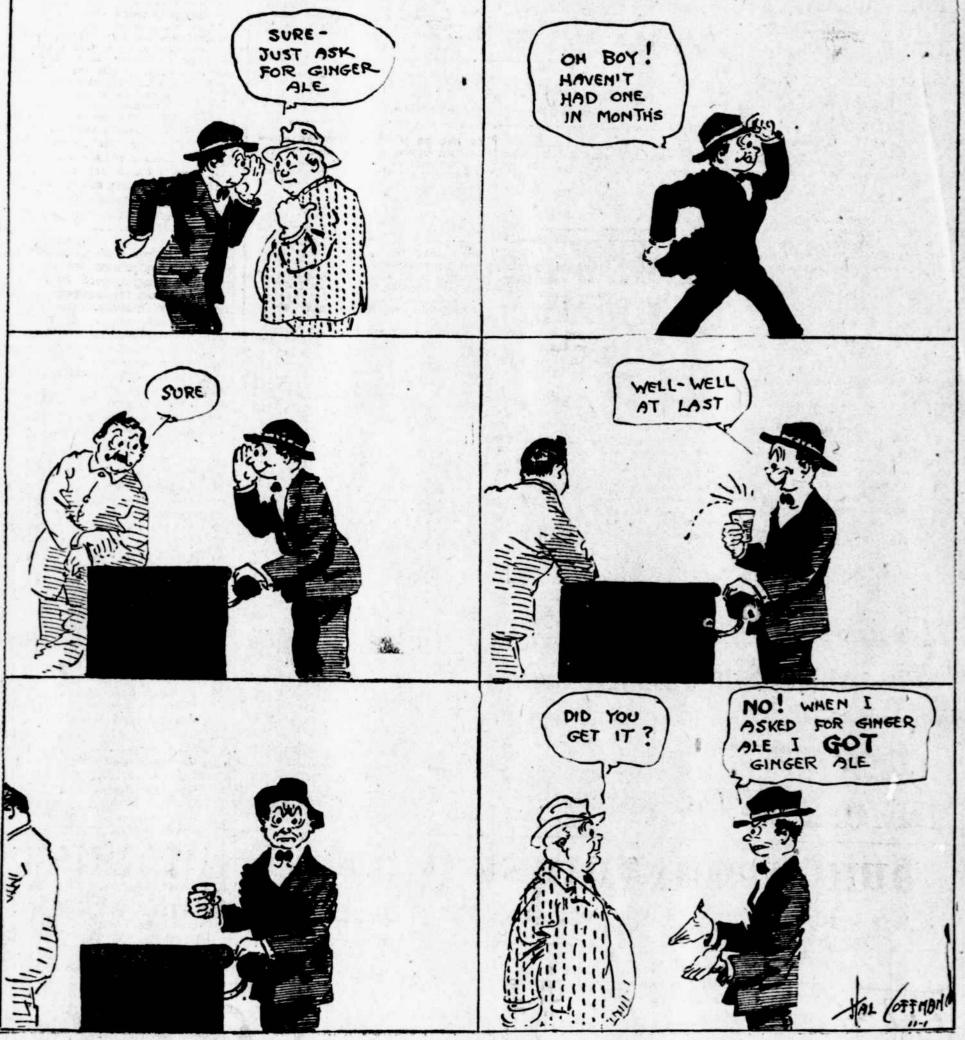

Sir George Paish, of the British treasury. says that a hundred millions of Europe are in danger of starving. Needless to say, America is looked upon to stop that. America should and doubtless will do all possible. But something could be done abroad.

For instance, another Englishman asks how soon the British government is going to stop building only warships in the national yards and begin building commercial ships that will give useful employment?

If Europe would stop spending billions getting ready for future war, some money might be spent for the hundreds of millions that are going to starve.

One cause for the high price of silver probably is this: Money is cheap; all nations are printing biltions of paper money that will be good some day or other, perhaps. There is no limit to the amount of paper that nations can print. But there are limits to the amount of gilver that can be produced. The hundreds of millions that five in Asia like something that they can feel and weigh, something that always has had value, so they are accumulating silver. And, by the way, a Mexican dollar, that was worth about half a dollar when our men went down to the border, is now worth more than a dollar. A dollar is worth afty cents, therefore fifty-five cents' worth of silver is worth one dollar and five cents.

That's Just the Way

Beatrice Fairfax Writes of the Problems and Pitfalls of Workers Here Especially For Washington Women

Answers to Correspondents to marry another. I have never told him I ever went out with

Your own heart must decide this question. Marry the man you think would make the better companion

for a lifetime. Sit down by yourself

the more to you and which has made you the happier. Ask yourself which interests you more—the prospect of seeing and spending an evening with the Marine or with the man of thirty-one. The queston of whether you are treating him wrong or not ought never to come up for consideration.

There is no greater wrong you could do him than to marry him

if you do not love him and no greater wrong you could do yourself than to marry either of these men unless your heart tells you

I am very much in love with a young man who is at West Point and I did think the feeling was mutual, but now I am a bit uncer-

The night before he went back

(after a month's leave) he came up to my home to say good-by and he promised to write the first chance

he had, that was the first of October, but I have not heard one word from him. Then, about two weeks ago I thought probably he was ill, so I wrote him and have not

It could be that he is ill or that he has written and the leter been

We parted the best of friends.

yet received an answer.

the course is right!

West Pointer's Love

Has Evidently Cooled.

MY DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

another fellow. UNDECIDED.

Before my marriage to a prominent business man about town, I had the reputation of being quite a good sport among men, and one of them, a young doctor, whom I knew well and who makes frequent visits to our house, being a friend of my husband's, who is forever ing to take advantage of me.

reminding me of my past, and try-It he meets me on the street its always with the following greeting, "Hello kid, getting so proud and proper now that you've mar-

This man worries me to death and really makes me feel as if there is no use in trying to be good if you've once been bad-and still to profess to be a good friend of my husband. Is there anything I can do to relieve the situation and what do you think of a man who just tries to make a woman's life miserable by persecuting her in this man-

It takes all kinds of people to make up the world and unfortunately there are too many like the doctor. Under the circumstances, I see nothing to do except to avoid him as much as possible and be dignified and aloof when you do have to meet him. There are some men to whom an appeal might have some effect. Why not ask him to be a good fellow and refrain from referring to things that are past. He may have a spark of decency left which will respond. Don't ever doubt that there is "any use in trying to be good." Stick it out if only for the sake of the good man who married you and is treating you so well.

On With the New Before

She Was Off With the Old. When I was seventeen, I met a young man for whom I care very much. He always seemed to think didn't because a year later, he went to Richmond without telling me and enlisted in the marine corps. When I next heard he was at Port Royal. S. C. He asked forgiveness for what he had done, and if I'd be true and wait for him. Being young and foolish I forgave him. His time is up in March, and we are engaged to be married. I have me another fellow I care a great deal for. He seems to think the would of me and begs me to marry him. He is an intelligent fellow of thirty-one, a good manager and has a good position. The other fellow has no trade and nothing saved. I know the fellow of thirty-one would make the best husband. But I am afraid would not be happy with him, as loved the marine first and love im yet, and every time I see him he acts as though he care more for me, and tell me he woull be happy when he is free from service, so we

Would I be treating him wrong

ostreet, between Thirteenth and Foureenth streets northwest, 8 p. m.
Meeting—Washington Chapter, American War Mothers, Thomson Community Center,
Twelfth and L streets northwest, 8 p. m.
Dance—Washington Camp, Modern
Woodmen of America, Old Masonic Temple,
Ninth and Faircets northwest, 8 p. m.
Meeting—Illinois State Girls' Club, Blue Triangle Recreation Center, Twentieth and B streets northwest, 8 p. m.

him to think I am running after

One letter MIGHT get lost but him, as it were.

even with our postal service, it is very doubtful if the same fate could befall two letters. Were he too ill to write, it would not only be probable, but almost certain that he would have someone write or telegraph you. would content my soul in peace, as far as possible, and wait. You can do nothing more and not sacrifice your self-respect. DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man of 21 years. I am employed in a Government office and am the only young man in the office which contains several young ladies. Before I came to this office I was considered very modest and sedate. The young ladies in the office are pretty lively and I have heard many things I did not know before about girls. I have tried to show my dislike for some of their talk but it does no good.

What would you do in this case? HARASSED.

I should not pay the slightest attention. The more they see they can disturb or tease you the bolder they will become. If you concentrate on your work and they see you are not paying the slightest attention to them, they will realize they have lost their "audience" and will probably quiet down Don't judge all girls by these. There are some "wild women" employed downtown but they are not typical of the American girl of today.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I am a young man, nineteen years lost, but, at any rate, I am puzzled. of age, and for the past year have I did not think I would like to been going with a young girl (A) write again, because if he has no one year my senior. Although I

What's Doing; Where; When

Meeting—Conduit Road Citizens' Associa-on, St. David's Parish Hall, Conduit road | Meeting—District Alumni Association, Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity, 1829 Nine-teenth street northwest, 8 p. m.

Meeting—Conduit Road Citizens' Association, St. David's Parish Hall, Conduit road near Nebraska avenue, 8 p. m.

Meeting—Pennsylvania Society of Washington, Thomson School, Twelfth and L treets northwest, 8 p. m.

Dance—Blue Triangle Recreation Center, Twentieth and B streets northwest, 7 p. m.

Meeting—Gies Club. Blue Triangle Recreation Center, Twentieth and B streets northwest, 8:15 p. m.

Entertainment—Washington Shakespeare Society, Community Service Theater, 918

Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity, 1829 Nineteenth street northwest, 8 p. m.

Tomorrow.

Meeting—Captains' Club of Girl Scouts, Girl Scout Headquarters, room 215 Woodward building, 2 p. m., election of officers. Rehearsal—Girl Scout Chorus of 1,000 voices, Thomson School, Twelfth and L streets northwest, 2:30 p. m.

Dinner—Ohio State University Alumnit. University Club. 8 p. m.

Meeting—Maine State Society, Wilson Normal School, Eleventh and Harvard ociety, Community Service Theater, 218 Normal School, Eleventh and Harvard enth street northwest, 8 p. m. Play and Dance—Epiphsny Parish House, street, between Thirteenth and Four-ton, Cosmos Club, Madison place northwest, regularly. This girl (A) has a girl friend (B), who within the past two months wrote me a letter of no importance, which I answered. Since then she has been corresponding with me regularly also. She has confessed her love for me, although she knows I love A, and also knows of our close friendship. A and l frequently go to dances, theaters etc., and she seems to care a great deal for me, although she has never mentioned it. Do you think it would be proper for me to keep corresponding with B? It doesn't seem to me a fair way to treat A I have never been out with B except to parties, and then she had a friend. I am sure to get in bad with A if she learns of my relations with B. The two girls are close friends, and B declares she has not said anything to A of her letters to me. It looks very funny to me, and I fear it might be a frame-up to test my love for A. A. B. K.

Play the game squarely and then you won't have to lose any sleep worrying about a frameup or anything else. You never can tell what two young girls will be up to when they get their two fair heads together. Miss A. sounds the more modest and sincere to me. Why not show your appreciation of a decent girl by playing fair with

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I am a young man of twenty-three, am madly in love with a girl of nineteen, whose people object to me-mainly because I am not wealthy. She is attractive and they have determined to marry her to wealth. The girl has different ideas. She wants to marry for love. She does not admit she loves me but likes me more than anyone she knows of. I know she does love and will not give in. I am not making enough to give her the home she is accustomed to and she is willing to work and help. Would you advise her to listen to her people and give me up immediately? I would rather give her up than see her suffering through the nagging she has to take from her mother. I personally believe the mother is looking out for her own happiness more than for the HOPING HARRY.

Don't be too quick to judge the motives of others, but do all you can to prevent this girl or any other from making a loveless marriage. There isn't any game worth winning that doesn't require a struggle, and it looks as though you would have to put up a big fight if you are to win this one. It would be a mistake for her to marry even you until she is older and has a better chance to judge what kind of a man she wants to live with for the rest of how hife nation what the standard of pay for teachers should be. Washington's teachers are better off than they were a few years ago, but even now they do not receive an adequate return for their importance. If Congress will grasp the significance of the situation, it will take a step for the Congress should set a valuation on teachers.

A teacher in Washington is worth just as much as a teacher in Boston. A teacher in the farthest rural district is worth just as much as a teacher in the finest city neighborhood-and perhaps MORE. A teacher is worth a big investment in public funds, because the teacher is develop-

We pay window washers, chauffeurs, and steamfitters more than we pay the teachers to whom we entrust our children. We take forty American children in Washington, put a teacher over them, and pay her twelve hundred dollars a year after a long term of service. We take forty children in Boston and pay the teacher fifteeen hundred dollars, perhaps; we take forty children in a neglected mountain region-WHERE EDUCATION IS NEEDED BADLY—and pay forty dollars a month for it.

We will pay sixty dollars for a tire for a small auto-

We have set up a little red schoolhouse and worked up

Educating American children is worth money. Let's

Once more: Congress has a wonderful opportunity to raise the standard of education by setting a high standard down to work just like a soap factory and is now broke. (Now is the time These burning thoughts are inspired church supper charged $1 for supper by the sight of a stenographer sitting with plum pudding and if you wanted idly at her desk, pad in hand, wait- ice cream you had to pay 80 cents ing for her chief who talked for one more and at that you didn't get any hour with three gentlemen who called plum pudding. to negotiate something or other with over to HARRY WARDMAN'S place A stenographer's time is valuable, and was given by All Souls Church But it depends entirely upon the dis- HATCH STERRETT, the hands position of her boss's time. When minister was there in regular clothes FRANK BRIGHT was among the he is called away from dictation she frequently has nothing to do. In these days when ingenious men have chine dictation, there is no reason for ing a time, I tell you. My troubles losing time in any office. Dictating arise because I can't induce ANYto a machine is the biggest time BODY in Washington to put in two saver I know of except the telephone and the sleeping car. brand new air tight up-to-the-minute

A. WADE WELLS sends me a copy garage door. Every one I approach of "The Defender," a paper published on the subject (or rather both subby the National Tobacco League of America, and is of course supported with work that I can't get a hearing. by the opponents of the anti-tobacco movement. I'll make a bet with any long faced blue nosed reformer that have troubles along a somewhat we'll be smoking tobacco for the next ten thousand years.

Attractive Bank Clerk.

Equitable Look him over.

supposed to be self supporting.

year 1918 and since then nothing class job. Wanted the tank lined more about assessment was said for with zinc, man was awful busy but

The last one Ye Ed. attended was present and ate a large piece of tur-

A. M. McALLISTER and I are hav-radiators and supply me with a jects) seems to be so cluttered up

Friend McALLISTER seems to

"Listen I am moving into the basement under the New National Theater. Had to have a wooden tank. So I waylaid a carpenter who was working next door and led him to the job. Said he was awful busy but could do the job for twelve bucks. When I recovered I led him out, bought three dollars worth of lumber and have as good or better

"Had to have the tank piped so when I saw a plumber getting his teeth filled, I grabbed him and led him to the job. He wore out a lead pencil and a lot of paper figuring came to $8.70 but he would do me a

Was so badly rattled that I told him

"Bought the material which to-similar line. I'll let him tell the Wanted a sign painted. Man get any sugar unless they paid up said was very busy said could paint their back dues of $1.50. This is the it for $6.50. Told him was a sign first said about dues. The store is painter myself. Said he would do it for three dollars. Have no sign yet but am hopeful. Still we wonder at Crime."

Standard of American Education By EARL GODWIN. Teachers are the most valuable people on earth, next to mothers. They are the poorest paid class, next to min-

This Congress Can Raise the Entire

Now that the teachers of the public schools of Washington have gone before the Congressional Committee on Pay Reclassification, Congress has a chance to show the advancement of the standard of teachers all over the country. Eventually it would mean a nation better educated.

That in itself will tell the world that a teacher is worth a certain sum-AND NOT A CENT LESS.

ing the men and women of tomorrow.

mobile and kick because educating our children costs as much per year. The average cost of educating an American school child is small.

a lot of maudlin sentiment about it, claiming it is the bulwark of American liberty and strength. That sort of stuff is good only for Fourth of July speeches and flag raisings. The fact remains that all the little red schoolhouses on earth will do no good unless there is a good teacher inside. Time was when a teacher would take the job for her board and a hundred dollars a year. That time is gone. So is the time when a graduate of the normal school will accept a position in a city public school when she sees women with no education at all drawing several hundred dollars a year MORE than the trained teacher.

of teachers' pay.

HEARD AND SEEN

Some day the United States Gov- Ye Ed has been browns about ernment will quit fooling and get among the church sociables lately or any other ordinary business unit to pay up your subscription.) One the department.

I know well that Uncle Earl will be smoking tobacco whenever the spirit moves. How about YOU?

Having read and noted items in egard to the Handsome Drug Clerk why not denote a little time to our Attractive Bank Clerks, I having tank. the pleasure and honor to nominate the clever young man who is receiving and signs initial "J" in the Building Association.

About two years ago at the General on cost of material, which he said Postoffice the clerks started a Cooperative store for the purpose of favor and do the work for $18.00. buying groceries and provisions; the heads of the movement stated that to go ahead, but he never showed each clerk would be assessed $1 to up. begin business with the understanding that if any additional money was needed an additional 50 cents would gether with labor of fitting, cost be called from each member. This $2.78. Paid the janitor one buck to 50 cents was called for early in the connect the pipes and have a first one year and a half. A short time would do it for ten dollars. Lined ago. Fourth Assistant Postmaster it myself for two dollars and fifteen General Blakesly took the presidency cents. and as a result last week word went around stating that no clerk could

What do you know about this? A VICTIM.